

On Sunday 7 February the 10th Australasian Urban History, Planning History Conference launches with a screening of three rarely-seen planning films of the 1970s

Peter Lamb's Junction (on the demolition of St Kilda's Junction Hotel), Don Featherstone's Honeysuckle Hill (a critique of peri-urban development) and Peter Weir's Whatever Happened to Green Valley? (the stories of residents of a new outer suburb).

Open to the public – admission is FREE.

5 pm Sunday 7 February, Theatre 2, ACMI Federation Square

The films will be followed by a panel discussion.
